Dealing with Evil People During The Holidays

Last year at this time I was working hard to get the paper out, had just finished with the "Party for the Pantry", and was in the process of moving in to my new home and preparing for Christmas. In my hurry to get things done I felt my heart race a few beats. Oh boy! I decided it was time for me to take a break and rest a bit.

So, I went to a local club and ordered an ice-cold beer. Sitting by myself, I began to relax a bit and then the Sunshine Band started playing beautiful Christmas music. It had been half a year since my mom passed away and it was my first Christmas without her. Hard as I tried I could not stop the flow of tears. Off to the ladies room I went to compose myself. Everyone in the place knew that I had recently lost my mother and I was quite embarrassed to "lose it" in a public place.

After I returned to my seat, a woman that I had not spoke to in a few years decided she could not let an opportunity to take advantage of my vulnerability go. She walked a distance out of her way to come over where I was sitting and asked, "What was the favorite meal that your mother cooked for you for Christmas?"

Needless to say I was shocked. I sat there dumfounded and blankly stared into the face of evil. Satisfied that she had achieved her goal of kicking me when I was down she smugly walked away.

There is nothing like a good dose of evil to kick in your spirituality.

Remember this, how people treat you is their karma, how you react is yours.
