DEAR ALCOHOL...

I thought I'd take a minute to discuss some troubling factors with you. First and foremost, let me tell you that I'm a huge fan of yours... your many sides and dimensions are mind-boggling (different than beer goggling, which I'll touch upon shortly.) Yes, my friend, you always seem to be there when needed -- the perfect post-work cocktail, a beer with the game -- and you're even around in the holidays, hidden inside chocolates you warm us when we're stuck in the midst of endless family gatherings.

Yet lately, I have been wondering about your intentions. You see, I want to believe that you have my best interests at heart, but I feel that your influence has led to unwise consequences briefed below for your review:

PHONE CALLS: While I agree with you that communication is important, I question the suggestion that any conversation of substance or necessity occurs at 5 am.

EATING: Now, you know I love a good meal, though cooking is far from my specialty, why you suggested that I eat a kebab with chilli sauce couple with a pot noodle and some stale crisps (washed down with chocolate milk and topped off with a couple of chocolate bars) is beyond me. Eclectic eater I am, but I think you went a bit too far this time.

CLUMSINESS: Unless you're subtly trying to tell me I need to do yoga more to increase my balance, I see NO need to hammer the issue home by causing me to fall down the stairs. Completely unpleasant, inflatable balloon animals, traffic cones, bras

BEER GOGGLES: If I think I may know him/her from somewhere, I most likely do not. PLEASE do not request that I go over and see if in fact, I do actually know that person. This is similar to the old "Hey, you're in my class" syndrome circa 1996 at SU, and should heretofore be rendered completely unacceptable. I ask that if the proper steps are proactively taken on my part (i.e. water, vitamin B, bread products, aspirin) prior to going to bed/passing out facedown on the kitchen floor with a bag of popcorn, the hangover should be quite minimal and no way interfere with my daily Saturday or Sunday (or any day, for that matter) activities. Come on now, it's only fair - you do your part, I'll do mine.

Dear Alcohol,
 We had a deal where you would make me funnier, smarter, and a better dancer... I saw the video...

WE NEED TO TALK.

Alcohol, I have enjoyed our relationship for some years now, and want to ensure that we remain on good terms. You've been the invoker of great stories, the provocation for much laughter, and the needed companion when we just don't know what to do with the extra money in our pockets. In order to continue this relationship, I ask that you carefully review my grievances above and address them immediately. I will look for an answer no later than Thursday at 5pm (pre-happy hour) on your possible solutions and hopefully we can continue this fruitful partnership. Thank you for your prompt attention to these matters.

Sincerely...
 "Your Biggest Fan"

unnecessary. Similarly, it should never take me more than 30 seconds to get the front door key into the lock.

PICTURES: This is a blessing in disguise, as it can often clarify the last point below, but the following costumes are heretofore banned from being placed on my head in public: Indian Wigs, Sombreros, Bows, Ties, Boxes, upside-down illegal. Coupled with this is the phrase "Let's shag". While I may be thinking this, please reinstate the brain-to-mouth block that would keep this thought from being a statement, especially in public.

HANGOVERS: The hangovers have GOT to stop. Now, I know a little penance for our previous evenings' debauchery may be in order, but the 2pm hangover immo-
