Natures Heart
 Seeds are a potent vessel of nature, they hold entirely inside itself the blueprints of life. The sea heart can lie dormant for up to 35 years or until conditions are just right for it to burst into life. As a beautiful metaphor of our consciousness, seeds represents the divine design within all things.

Artist of the Month: Resa

Born and raised in the Florida Keys, Resa is a unique soul and interesting artist. At 21, she's one to watch, as her journey has just begun. She works with found objects from nature!

These are Resa's recent works — made with love —and some of her unique rhymes and thoughts to go with them. Her work is on display this month at The Art Box.

Enchanted dreams and drift beans

Roo the Rooster
 The rooster's eyes are burning with fire, like the sunsets deepest desires. The dark black feathers are more than they seem, as soon as the light shines on them they turn iridescent green. The roosters crow can be heard morning and night, awakening people with such a fright. The more I listen, the more I feel, that my true purpose here is to heal.

Planted Drift Beans
 The drift bean has been planted, it is here from the enchanted. It's been drifting for far too long, it is the universe, she is a song.

Peacock Feather
 Peacocks can eat poisonous plants that no other animal can eat. Instead of being poisoned, the bird transforms the poison into beautiful and vibrant colored feathers. A living example of turning poison into beauty. This powerful bird shines a new light into how I view the world around me.
